LOCAL AND PERSONAL

JOHN PARKER HELD AT PIEDRAS NEGRAS.

John Parker, alias Snake, for whom an intensive search has been made since the fatal stabbing of Roy Embrey in the early morning hours of November 14th, is in the hands of Mexican authorities and is being held in jail at Piedras Negras pending his transfer to Texas authorities. He has admitted his guilt.

Sheriff Chas. J. Schuele, District Attorney R. J. Noonan and Deputy Sheriff C. J. Bless went to Eagle Pass Thursday to confer with border authorities. They recovered the shot gun which Parker had stolen from the Henry Martin ranch home while trying to make his getaway.

Arrest of John Parker, wanted for the fatal stabbing of young Embrey on Nov. 14, was announced Wednesday by Sheriff Herman Lehmann of Eagle Pass.

The negro was captured Monday by the chief of police at Piedras Negras and Deputy Sheriff Griff Powles on a ranch in Mexico, 22 miles south of Piedras Negras and nearly 140 miles from Hondo.

Parker is being held by Mexican immigration authorities pending deportation orders from Mexico City for his transfer to officers in Eagle Pass.

The arrest brought to a close a widespread search that was conducted with the aid of an airplane and bloodhounds by a posse of more than 100 Hondo residents after Roy Embrey, 22-year-old Hondo boy, was stabbed through the heart when he attempted to help Henry Moore, Hondo night watchman, stop a fight between a negro and another man. The airplane was furnished by A. G. Hollaway of San Antonio, native of Hondo, and the bloodhounds by Sheriff Elmo Arnold of New Braunfels.

First clue of the suspect's whereabouts was reported to Sheriff Lehmann Monday morning by laborers from a grubbing camp on El Indio ranch, 20 miles southeast of Eagle Pass on the Texas side of the Rio Grande. They reported that a negro answering Parker's description appeared in camp early Monday morning and asked directions to the Rio Grande.

Money, it was stated, was offered to one of the laborers if he would direct the way to the shallowest place to cross to Mexico. Food was given to the negro, but the laborers refused to escort him to the river.

The sheriff reported that a negro, believed to have been the same who approached the laborers, exchanged a shotgun for food at the South Indio ranchhouse later in the day.

After obtaining possession of the gun, Deputy Sheriff Powles went to Piedras Negras to get assistance from Mexican authorities. Parker's arrest followed.

HONORED WITH DINNER.

Mrs. Charlotte E. Miller was the honoree at a turkey dinner Thursday at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Miller. The occasion was the lady's 77th anniversary and she was greatly pleased.

In addition to the pleasure of being with the family of her hosts, she was given the further pleasure of being surprised by the presence at the dinner of two of her daughters and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Rothe and son, Tommy, and Dr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Reilly and son, Wm. J., all of San Antonio.

Despite her years Mrs. Miller is strong and active and enjoying good health.

This paper joins her many friends in congratulations on this joyful occasion and wishing her many more happy returns.

W. M. S. MEETS.

At a meeting of the Methodist Missionary Society Monday, November 15, at the home of Mrs. W. J. Martin, it was decided to have a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Alfred Schweers sometime next month. This being the regular program and social meeting, refreshment of cake, sandwiches and tea were served to the fourteen members present by the hostesses, Mrs. L. E. Kollman, Jr., Mrs. Barnitz Carle, and Mrs. W. J. Martin.

Last Monday at a call meeting at the church the Methodist Missionary Society decided to sponsor a cake sale Saturday, December 4, for the purpose of raising funds to be used in improving the parsonage.

A THANKSGIVING SUGGESTION

MRS. JOE W. STEINLE HONORED.

On Sunday, November 14, 1937, Mrs. Joe W. Steinle, a recent bride, was honored with a miscellaneous shower given in the home of Mrs. Joe H. Steinle, with Mrs. Robert B. Freiten, and Misses Doris Rihn, Naomi Steinle and Ellyn Steinle as hostesses.

After the guests assembled a short program was rendered. Miss Tessie Rihn gave the toast, and Miss Dorothy Marie Steinle did several tap and acrobatic numbers. Mrs. J. L. Mecher gave several harmonica selections, and readings were given by Mrs. Harry Steinle, and Miss Doris Rihn. Little Miss Margaret Steinle presented the bride with a bouquet of roses, after which many beautiful gifts were presented the honoree, and admired by all. Mrs. Steinle then graciously thanked all for the gifts.

A delicious lunch of chicken salad, and cheese-nut sandwiches, fruit and sponge cake, and tea and coffee, was served buffet style. Blue daisies in a silver basket, and white tapers in pewter holder adorned the table in the dining room. Mrs. Robert Rihn presided over the silver coffee service, and Miss Clara Wurzbach poured the tea.

A vase of roses beautified the lace covered table that held the hand-painted Bride's Book, over which Miss Doris Rihn presided. About fifty-five guests registered.

Mrs. Garrett Wilson, elderly lady of the Yancey community, died Thursday afternoon, November 25, 1937. Funeral services will be held this afternoon (Friday) at 3 P. M. in Yancey, with arrangements by the Horger Funeral Home.

We hope to have a more extended account of the deceased's life for our next week's issue.

QUIHI NOTES.

And the men of the place asked him of his wife; and he said, She is my sister; for he feared . . . the men of the place should kill me. Gen. 26-7.

"Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them." And true greatness, in every field of human endeavor, leaves its stamp and impress upon its time, like a meteor leaving a bright streak while sweeping through the starry sky. Joseph in Egypt, St. Paul among the missionaries, Washington, Gladstone, Bismarck, in the sphere of statecraft, Leonardo da Vinci in arts, Edison for modern inventions, the Wright brothers in the field of aeronautics, might serve for examples. By the same token, times make great men, grave, stormy, eventful times. Without times of critical junctures, unleashed passions and violence, upheavals, rebellions and revolutions Moses might have remained a lonely shepherd, Samson the Carnivera of his day, Caesar the Roman Tammany, Charlemagne never "the Great", Mirabeau a Parisian ward-heeler, Napoleon an average officer, Patrick Henry a rural lawyer, Benjamin Franklin printer and gentleman of leisure, Lincoln just "honest Abe", Robert E. Lee military instructor, Grant the haphazard trader of Galena, Ill. Great times often thrust greatness upon some men, making them slink and sneak and pettifog, making them into clishers, cheap profiteers or cowards. Isaac can hardly escape the latter charge. He never was a dynamic he-man, swaggering and dazzling his surroundings, never showed a genius that wings its way aloft, no melodramatic airs of adventure and romance about him—and no harm done. He was a quiet, peaceful and simple home-happiness-loving man, somewhat provincial and unfamiliar with the seamy side of life, viewing things through a home-made lens—no demerit in that. But now when these pagans gaze and gloat and show undue interest in the charms of his wife, he, the official representative of the true God, the messenger with a message for the religious and moral uplift of these men, he, the supposedly true example of a godly life, fully assured of divine care and protection, he renounces all claims to veracity, faith, prudence and consistency to the voice of cowardly subterfuge and hypocrisy, fearing for wife and more so for life. The "great" of the world, according to their moral yardstick, might laugh away such a "trifle"; for Isaac it's a slap and a slap, deeply puncturing the merit and "holiness" of man and reminding of the word spoken through Isaiah, "I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Savior."

The bleak and wintry days are here again. The Lord wraps them up in golden sunshine for us down here, a kind of sugar-coated pills, less harsh to take and, to be candid, we'd love to see them wrapped in soaking rains for the parched pastures and the empty tanks. (Did we make our wishes known to Him?) Yet when the cold spell sets in on a Sunday, it spells empty and yawning pews for the services. Our Mission Festival tells the tale. The guest preacher braved the many miles for us, and we were glad that at least some here had braved the cold, showing the Lord their loyalty even under hardships. We are sure the absentees will bring their mission contributions at a later date, as they are needed and always welcome. The evening service had to be taken over by the pastor, since the Rev. L. Billnitzer had to return early, due to some patients critically ill.

Thanksgiving Day, a thing of the past now. A great day, was it? Officially meant for one and proclaimed throughout the land. And what a menu card for the day: Football, turkey dinner (some had cheese and crackers, several minus the cheese), friends and visitors, home-coming, hunting trips, gala parties and dress parades and busy toes thumping the floors to the wee sma' hours of the morning, accidents, hospitals, chloroform, death. Thanksgiving, Misnomer? Millions, however, caught the spirit of the day, bowing with grateful hearts for innumerable mercies and just keeping on with their thanksgiving, sprinkling it upon the days as they go by, and each one fraught with the kindness of God.

SPRING & FALL.

By Clayton Rand.

* Fall, like spring, is an excellent advertiser. Spring tells its tale in song of bird, bursting bud and the fragrance of flowers. * Fall paints an alluring picture in purple and gold, and proclaims itself in an abundant harvest, the fruit of fulfillment. * But there are a lot of business men who change not with the season. Like winter they hide themselves from the world, and cover their wares as they would a secret. * And when summer comes they go into a sleepy slump, wondering if there will ever be another business revival. SHOULDN'T WE FIRST GET TOGETHER?

When a community of people propose to change their mode of life, under which they have long enjoyed tranquility and a reasonable prosperity, common sense and prudence would seem to impel a reasonable agreement on some outstanding purpose to be served or need to be supplied.

As we understand the situation as to incorporation for Hondo, no such agreement exists.

For instance, from the report of his plea before the steering committee for incorporation, this writer quotes:

"The Managing Editor of this paper accepted, as a courtesy to the press, an invitation to sit in with the committee and, being consulted on several points, took advantage of the opportunity to re-iterate his oft repeated plea that when Hondo incorporates it should be primarily and specifically for establishing and maintaining a municipally owned water and sewer system."

"He tried to make his triple relationship to the matter clear. First, that as a voter he shall vote against any effort at this time to incorporate Hondo unless an adequate sewer system is made specifically the paramount objective and is backed up by a slate of dependable men as candidates for city office pledged to achieve that objective first."

Since then there have been these reactions to that statement of our position:

"4. Hondo has some of the purest deep water in Texas at an extremely low rate. Where can incorporation help our water system?"—J. Frank Jungman, November 12th.

Obviously, incorporation in itself would be of no help.

But should the potential danger mentioned in next paragraph become an actual emergency incorporation and a municipal bond issue would become an immediate necessity.

"Hondo has fine water but how long will it remain uncontaminated with the open toilets and septic tanks draining into the earth, which will in time seep down into our water system with dire results. Those people living any distance from our water source have difficulty getting sufficient pressure during the time when most needed. What about this pressure when needed for fire protection? This can be corrected by a standard water system. There is no complaint about the light, power or gas."—F. X. Vance, November 19th.

An adequate handling of such a problem will tax Hondo's resources to the limit.

Why jeopardize them by going off after less essential things? But alas, says another:

"Sanitation needs attention but no one wants to float a bond issue and build a sewer system right away. That takes time and thought as well as planning."—W. H. Smith, Candidate for Commissioner, November 19th.

Feeling that a graver mistake could scarcely be made than for Hondo to acquire a municipal debt for any other purpose before water and sewerage disposal are properly cared for—a thing impossible after other debts are acquired—we have no reason for changing our position.

HONDO, TEXAS, NOV. 26, 1937

"NOBODY'S BUSINESS"

By Julian Copers, Jr.

AUSTIN Nov. 20.—Politics and the problems of state were given a vacation this week in Texas as State officials welcomed the opening of the deer hunting season by departing en masse for the deer country. Headed by Gov. Allred, who "jumped the gun" a week by going to Mexico, and then returned for a few days hunting in Texas when the State season opened, with the Governor of Colorado as his guest, virtually everybody in Austin who owns or could borrow or rent a rifle, was afield. With 25 per cent more hunting licenses issued this year than ever before, and a plentiful supply of bucks reported through the deer country, a most successful season was assured. Many lucky hunters were returning by the week-end, with huge bucks proudly draped over the motor-car fenders, having gotten their Thanksgiving trophy within 24 hours.

The holiday interlude, ending January 2, however, will find the politicians all set and ready for the six-months dash that will bring them up to the legislative session. Official campaigns which have been under way for months, will come out into the open. Developments of the last few weeks indicate that reform will be one of the leading issues in both the Governor's and the legislative races. Another special session, despite denials by Governor Allred, one of the best informed observers may be staged in March, in the opinion, to raise some additional money for old age pensions, the teachers' retirement fund, needy blind and dependent children. Best indication from the last special session is that the goal of new revenue will be from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000, instead of the $15,000,000 demanded by the Governor in the last fruitless session.

Legal developments which have occurred since the special session ended, however, may make considerable difference in the state's financial outlook. According to the higher federal courts of the State's intangible tax on pipelines apparently has put an end to this 5-year old litigation, and, in the pipeline companies pay off, as several have indicated, it is estimated the general fund will receive $2,000,000 immediately, and several hundred thousand additional annually thereafter. Counties in which the pipelines are located will profit by substantial sums, also.

The possibility that the Supreme Court may rule finally upon the litigation involving the inheritance taxes on the E. H. R. Green estate within the next few months, may, if the decision is favorable to Texas, bring in another estimated $5,000,000 to the state treasury.

A third factor affecting revenue is the court decision ending the practice of oil companies of paying for only 99 per cent of oil in tanks and pipelines, deducting 1 per cent for "shrinkage." The Texas Railroad Commission ordered this practice halted, and the courts upheld the order. The additional 1 per cent will substantially increase the State's tax revenue on crude oil production.

15 Senators Face Test.

Issues are in the making now for the 150 legislative places in the House, and 15 Senatorial posts to be filled at next July's primaries. In the Senate, especially, there is great interest, since the terms of some of the upper House's outstanding members expire, including T. J. Holbrook, who may not stand for re-election; Grady Woodruff of Decatur, dry leader; Weaver Moore of Houston, wet leader; Frank Rawlings, of Fort Worth, the Senate's best parliamentary expert; Ben O'Neal of Wichita Falls, administration floor leader and former law partner of Gov. Allred; G. H. Nelson, of Tahoka, who may run for Lieutenant Governor on a unicameral legislative platform; Clay Cotton, of Palestine; Olan Van Zandt of Tioga; Claude Isbell of Rockwall; Jim Neal of Mirando City, the man who broke the long reign of Archie Parr in the Valley; Allan Shivers, the youthful Port Arthur friend of labor; L. J. Sulak of LaGrange; R. A. Weinert of Seguin; Claude Westfeld, the radical leader from Dallas; and E. M. Davis of Brownwood, farm bloc spokesman.

Mann Will Run.

Part of the speculation as to who will be opponents of Lt. Gov. Walter Woodul for Attorney General was set at rest this week, when Gerald C. Mann, former secretary of State and now a Dallas lawyer, wrote members of the State Bar Association, declaring he will run, making his formal announcement later, and seeking support of lawyers of his home town. Judge Ralph Yarborough of Austin is reported as a certain candidate. He, like Mann, has never made a Statewide race. Woodul is conceded easy leadership in the race at this early stage, and additional candidates may develop after January 1, including Speaker Bob Calvert of Hillsboro, and Everett S. Looney of Austin.

Sen. Morris Sheppard, senior Texas representative in the national upper house, has recovered completely from his recent surgical operation, and is back on the job, in the thick of the special session. Sheppard is sponsoring a Federal constitutional amendment exempting all homesteads up to $5,000 value from all taxation. The grant East Texas oil field will stand idle four Sundays, while Commission experts make tests and study causes for an alarming decrease in bottom-hole pressure in the East Texas slashed 68,886 barrels for the State, to 1,394,143 barrels daily in the Commission order for November, to hold production within demands of a

Maverick, the fire-eating congressman from San Antonio, is being encouraged to make the race for the Senate, against Senator Tom Connally in 1940, by ents, with whom he is extremely popular, according to Stuart Long, editor of the Austin Times, just back from a visit East.

KINDNESS PAYS DIVIDENDS.

Beware of easy ways to progress. During your lifetime you will see many false prophets, hear many offers of something-for-nothing. Maybe somewhere there is an undiscovered path to quick success. But whenever any such way is offered to you, ask yourself one simple question: "Whom will it harm?" Remember that your security and your progress often depends on how well others succeed.

Through those long years behind us it was invariably the man who tried to profit by harming others who found himself losing what he had hoped to gain.—Contributed.

VETERAN NEWSPAPER MAN HONORED.

Corpus Christi, Texas, Nov. 20.—When members of the Texas Editorial Association honored Eli T. Merriman, dean of Texas newspapermen, at their 26th annual convention here last week, they were paying tribute to a man who ranks with Corpus Christi's beautiful bay and her thriving port as an important South Texas institution.

The veteran newspaperman, who was born at Banquete in 1852 and moved to Corpus Christi 13 years later, has seen this city grow from a tiny, sleepy fishing village to one of the most active, bustling cities in Texas.

"Uncle Eli," who has been a newspaperman for 67 years, advocated building a deep-water port here for nearly 60 years before the Port of Corpus Christi became an actuality. That the pioneer's contentions of the possibilities for a harbor here were sound is seen in the fact that today the Port of Corpus Christi is visited by an average of nearly three ships a day which carry on water commerce with both the east and west coasts of the United States, as well as most of the nations of the old and new world. The Port of Corpus Christi handled 2,442,196 tons of cargo from January 1 to 30 this year.

Mr. Merriman, during recent years has seen modern skyscrapers supplant the many old buildings which he knew in his earlier days and which, like himself, formed an integral part in the historical picture of Corpus Christi. He has seen the development of an oil industry and other industries which have placed Corpus Christi and South Texas on the map as one of the richest mineral resource and industrial centers in the state. He has also seen Corpus Christi grow from a small community of a few hundred persons to a thriving city of 55,000 persons.

Merriman was one of the publishers of the old Corpus Christi Press, which 54 years ago was consolidated with the present-day Caller. He retired from active newspaper work 26 years ago but has never ceased contributing articles to the local newspapers. At 85 years of age he is still active, and his ever alert mind is a veritable storehouse of facts and findings concerning the history of Corpus Christi and South Texas.

THE NEW FOUNTAIN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Mrs. C. F. Schweers was hostess to the New Fountain Missionary Society on Wednesday, Nov. 17. Mrs. Fritz Bohmfalk, the program leader, opened the program by giving hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour." After the song the president took charge of a short business meeting. Ten members answered roll call. One guest was present. After the business session the program leader took charge again and announced the topic of the day, "Peace." Mrs. A. B. Brucks read, "The Missionary Knows No Boundary Lines." "The Missionary Expresses Christ's Universal Compassion" was read by Mrs. Jacob Schweers, Mrs. Robert Riff gave thought on, "The Missionary a Bridge Builder", Mrs. J. E. Muenink read paper, "Missions Promote Peace At Home," Mrs. C. F. Schweers gave a paper on, "Missions Develop Faith in Man", and Mrs. T. J. Wiemers read, "Peace Not Possible Without Charity." A period of Meditation followed, Mrs. Payne as leader, concluded by a poem read by Mrs. H. C. Muenink. Mrs. Fritz Bohmfalk concluded the period of silent prayer and meeting by reading the following lines:

Restless, restless, speed we on—
Whether in the vast Unknown?
Not to you and not to me,
Are the sealed orders shown;
But the Hand that built the road,
And the light that leads the feet,
And this inward restlessness,
Are such invitation sweet,
That where I no longer see,
Highway still must lead to thee.

The hostess served a plate lunch.

We are not ants and we are not bees, but we are about as busy as they are. We too are making a home. It is a home just like our home, but not so large. It is for the little dolls. We have made the paper and will soon paste it on the walls. The house has a living room, a bed room, a kitchen, a dining room, a play room and a bath room.

Reba and James Stillwell moved to their ranch Saturday. We will miss them very much.

Elsie Baker, Mary Emma Rucker and Bonnie Ulbrich were sick last week. Elsie and Mary Emma are able to be here today but there are two others absent on account of sickness. They are Jim Barry and Marjorie Britsch. We hope they will be with us again real soon.

Last Year's 0-to-0 Tie Adds Color To This Important Tilt

For the second successive year the Carrizo Springs Wildcats and the Hondo High Owls will play to determine which will reign supreme in District 43-B football. The Owls, hungry for revenge, will go into enemy territory in an attempt to settle the dispute Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Last year the all-important contest was a 0 to 0 thrill-packed tie. Very few fans will forget Captain J. H. Rothe's punt return on that soggy field and the penalty which nullified this 13 to Sabinal's 0.

The probable starting line-ups are:

Carrizo		Hondo
Landrum	L. E.	Schuehle
Allen	L. T.	Pope
Gray	L. G.	Jennings
J. Mullins	C	Rucker
Gardner	R. G.	Danie
Callahan	R. T.	Bader
Jeffrey	R. E.	Leinweber
Eardley	Q. B.	Windrow
Jim Mullins	R. H.	Abbot
Harr	L. H.	Rothe
Cartwright	F. B.	Fitzpatrick

Owls Erase Yellowjackets 13-0

JACKETS THREAT ONLY ONCE

By beating the Sabinal Yellowjackets 13 to 0 last Friday, the Hondo Owls clinched the Eastern Zone title and the right to meet Carrizo Springs, winner of the West Zone for the district championship.

The Owls made their first score in the second period when Jack Fitzpatrick took the ball across from the three-yard line on a line play. Fred Bader dropped out of the line to kick the extra point.

The second score came in the third quarter, after a long march down the field in which the Owls completed their only pass of the game, when R. D. "Babo" Windrow carried the mail across the pay line.

The Yellowjackets made only one scoring threat, this in the fourth quarter, with a very good passing attack that was stopped when Monroe Rucker intercepted a Sabinal pass. Windrow's 80-yard gain on a quick kick caught the Yellowjackets off guard and got the Owls out of their end of the field.

Owlets—IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN LIBRARY.

Several improvements have been made in the library, during the past week. Doors were made for four of the shelves in order to avoid losing some of the valuable magazines and other literature that are in the library. Two of the shelves are reserved for P-T. A. material and the other two shelves are reserved for music material.

Miss Doris Nesbit, librarian, deserves a great deal of credit for the improvements she has made in the library. The books are now arranged in alphabetical order, and a list of all the books which are past due is posted on the bulletin board. All the newspapers and magazines were put in order under the supervision of Miss Nesbit.

The library has taken on a new appearance in the last two weeks. Hondo High School has a library filled with good literature that should be put to use by the students.

Owlets—AG. BOYS TO TAN HIDES

Work on tanning of hides will fill next week's program for the vocational agriculture students. Under the supervision of Mr. Clifford Sadler, the agriculture teacher, they will tan cow hides, deer hides, and the hide of a javelina that was killed by one of the ag. students.

Price Set For Play

A definite admission price, fifteen and twenty-five cents, has been decided upon for the coming F. F. A. play. The play, "Hillybilly Courtship", is to be given on December 17. Cast members have begun practice on their parts and the boys hope to make a real success of the play.

Owlets—FIFTH GRADE REPORT.

Willie Mae Eckhart went to Sturm Hill.

June Caraway visited Castroville and went deer hunting.

Jim Amberson went deer hunting.

Don Peters visited his father's ranch near Kerrville.

Sarah Maude Cameron will have a birthday November 25th. She has already received a bicycle from her sister, Mary Ruth.

Doris Jean Stiegler visited her grandmother.

Owlets—H. E. CLUB MEETS.

The regular meeting of the Home Economics Club was held Monday, November 15. The vice-president, Zonie Taylor, presided over the meeting and as the members on the program were not present, the meeting adjourned after the business discussion.

Owlets—FORMER TEACHER MOVES TO ALABAMA.

Mr. Raleigh Moses, former Science and English teacher in Hondo High School, has been transferred from Biloxi, Mississippi, to Bayou La Batre, Alabama, where he is inspector of shrimp for the Civil Service, it was learned by a letter from Mr. Moses to Mr. McDowell.

The name Bayou La Batre means Payou of the Battery because the French kept batteries of artillery there. The main industries of the town are fishing, farming, pecan growing and tung orchards. The town is about the size of Hondo, and is situated about 22 miles south of Mobile, Alabama. It is situated so little above sea level that in times of a storm it is likely to be submerged. Bayou La Batre is part of the "Winter Playground of America" and this is the beginning of the season. The water has so much iron in it that the people's clothes cannot even be washed in it because it will make them rust.

Quote from letter: "Perhaps the science club might be interested in knowing of the differences in time here and at Hondo. We are very near the line of the Eastern Time Belt, so daylight comes here about 45 minutes earlier, and so does dark. At 12 o'clock the shadows are already sloping way to the east."

Owlets—HONDO PLAYS CARRIZO FOR DISTRICT CHAMPIONSHIP.

Having rolled through this season undefeated and scored on only three times, the Carrizo Springs Wildcats will be faced with the task of hurdling the Hondo Owls, the only obstruction in their path to a district championship.

The game between these zone champs will take place in Carrizo Springs next Friday, November 26, at 2:30 o'clock. Admission will be twenty-five cents for students and fifty cents for adults.

Owlets—
You are living your true life, if you take care to deserve your character.—Horace.

I am very anxious to keep up with the activities of your city and county on the construction of the all important highway No. 173, and I hope soon to read in the columns of your paper that all the right-of-way through your county has actually been secured. Rev. W. W. Hardt, one of Medina County's contributions to the Methodist ministry, writes us as follows: Last week I was assigned to this place as pastor of the Methodist church. For the second time in three years the Schreiner Institute Mountaineers are shooting for a state junior college football championship. The Cadets who defeated Lamar College 14 to 6 in a thrill packed game last week, thereby winning the Southern Region title, are now tapering off in preparation for their state championship game with the representative of District One. Put here's the catch. The Maroons don't know whom they will play, when they will play, or the location of the game. But Coach W. C. Weir, who is in his first year with the club and has guided them to the state finals, says there will be plenty of hard work in store for the boys during the next week or two. Kyle Muenink, of Hondo, is a member of the Mountaineer traveling squad this year, and may get a chance to plug up one of the holes in the line during this coming game.

WISE-CAMERON.

As a complete surprise to her many friends came the news of Miss Maude Cameron's marriage to Mr. John Wise of Hobbs, New Mexico.

Mrs. Wise, a long-time, highly respected resident of Hondo, was at one time engaged here in the millinery business with her sister, Mrs. Annie McWilliams. She is one of two girls of a large family, several members of which reside in Hondo.

Mr. Wise is a sheep and goat rancher in New Mexico.

There is a rather romantic attachment to their courtship and marriage. They were childhood sweethearts when their families lived near Austin, but later drifted apart and Mr. Wise moved to New Mexico where he became a successful rancher. During a visit back to Texas, he chanced to meet again the sweetheart of his youth and they renewed their courtship, keeping their plans to marry a secret. Then Saturday, November 20, 1937, they met at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. McWilliams, in Austin; from there they motored to Georgetown where they were quietly united in marriage. Thus a childhood romance was completed.

The couple left Monday by motor for Hobbs, New Mexico, where they will reside in the modern ranch home Mr. Wise recently built for his bride.

CAN'T ROPE HIM.

Bob Steele, hard-fisted, two-gun hero of western dramas, appears in "The Red Rope" at the Colonial Theatre Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

Back in 1920, Texas was known as an importer of approximately 60 per cent of the dairy products consumed within the state. Today it produces the bulk of all these foods used within its boundaries and actually exports some of these Texas commodities. This may in part explain why the South this fall will be honored for the first time by the staging of the Dairy Industries Exposition, largest regularly occurring industrial exposition in America, at New Orleans, October 21 to 27, and the annual conventions of the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers and of the International Association of Milk Dealers at Dallas, October 18-20 and Oct. 21-23, respectively.

Butter manufacture has increased from approximately 1,000,000 lbs. in 1920 to over 28,000,000 in 1936. In the same period, ice cream manufacture has increased by several million gallons. There is no record of manufacture of condensed milk, evaporated milk and powdered milk in 1920, yet today Texas ranks fourteenth among the states of the Union in the production of condensed milk; twenty-first in evaporated milk and twenty-third in dry milk. Cheese manufacture has sky-rocketed. No regular factories of manufacturers were reported in Texas as late as 1925, while today the state boasts of 28 cheese factories and ranks tenth among the states producing cheese. Milk casein manufacture was started only last year.

Miss Addie Belle Lukas, a poultry demonstrator near Westhoff in DeWitt County, owns 138 white leghorn hens which have produced an average of 163.8 eggs each in the eight months' period from November 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937. This already exceeds the Extension Service standard of 160 eggs per year per hen, and her hens still have four months to go. This flock has produced a total of 22,640 eggs, or 1,887 1-3 dozen, valued at $344.49, exclusive of eggs used for home consumption. The hens consumed 4,435 pounds of mash and 304 1-4 bushels of corn. Miss Lukas started in March, 1936, with 310 chicks, and established herself as a real poultry raiser by selling 153 fryers and putting 153 pullets in the laying house. She raised 98.7 per cent of the 310 chicks—proving again that "good luck with chickens is good management."

George Heyen, 14, of 1238 avenue, Wednesday was fighting life at Robert B. Green Memorial hospital, the victim of a hit and driver who left him crushed by the highway near Harlandale.

The youth's injuries had been diagnosed as a fractured crushed right leg, lacerations, possible internal injuries.

Young Heyen was on his way to visit a friend, Walter Moser, lives on Cross avenue in Harlandale Tuesday night, when he was by a car in the 1700 block of Harlandale road.

He said the car had only headlights, and that he looked in time to see it but could not being struck.

He was knocked to the side of road and eventually his cries heard by Dr. V. H. Fenderson, operates a dog and cat hospital, posited the scene of the accident. Fenderson gave what aid was possible and called an ambulance.

Deputy Sheriffs H. C. Beck and Herman Winkelman were unable to find any clues at the scene.

The boy is the son of C. R. Beck, who is a student of the junior at Harlandale and a member of glee club.

Young Heyen's dog, "Bud" stayed beside the youth at the scene of the accident until help came and could not be drawn away from his master had been placed in ambulance.—San Antonio Light

Today is the Golden Wedding Anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Borchers.

Mr. Borchers came to America from Europe in 1882. On November 26, 1887, he and Miss Margaret Balzen were happily married at Quhi.

Six children were born of this union, but they lost three sons in death. The three daughters are all married. They are Mrs. Hilda Borchers of Seguin, Mrs. Adela Heilgamm of Dunlay, and Mrs. Alma Boehle of Quhi.

Mr. and Mrs. Borchers are now making their home with the latter, having given up their own home on account of the frail health of Mrs. Borchers. Mr. Borchers is still hale and active despite his more than eighty years.

This paper joins in congratulations and best wishes for many more returns of this happy anniversary.

GREEN PAINT LEADS TO WHITE TURKS.

Daubs of green paint Saturday had enabled Mrs. Freddie Hugel of Hondo to recover 31 white turkeys stolen November 2.

When the turkeys were young she put a daub of green paint on each. When they were stolen she informed sheriff's deputies of the fact.

A farmer residing near Converse, nearly 50 miles from Hondo, Friday reported a flock of white turkeys wandering near his farm. He notified the sheriff's office and Mrs. Hugel reclaimed her property.

At the time of the theft deputy sheriff's warned poultry dealers here against purchasing the birds. It is believed the thieves learned of the warning and finding they lacked a ready market, turned the flock loose.—San Antonio Light.

MAKING MOST OF EVERY OPPORTUNITY.

By Ralph Underhill.

Selling Hay At The Meadow Pays Well.

Selling his alfalfa hay crop at the field for $8 per ton has proved more profitable to C. D. Ayers, farmer living in the fertile delta country of Mississippi county, Arkansas, than storing it for fall and winter markets. Mr. Ayers recently harvested 47 tons of cured alfalfa hay from a 20-acre tract and sold it for $8 per ton to Tennessee and Mississippi farmers who sent to the field for the hay. This was the first 1937 cutting and three more will be harvested this year. He purchased a power-driven pickup hay press, which enables the handling of the crop with the minimum of labor and cost.

Irrigation Sprinkler System Solves Problem On Irregular Soil.

After trying irrigation by flooding of his fields and finding that it was not satisfactory because the land was not level, G. L. White, Mississippi county, Arkansas, installed a sprinkler irrigation system that spreads one-half inch of water over 15 acres of land in 24 hours.

"I have been growing commercial vegetables for many years and my limiting factor has nearly always been a lack of moisture at the time it was most needed. With the aid of the sprinkler system, the 100 acres of truck crops grown on my farm are now receiving moisture when it is needed", Mr. White said.

He invested $1,600 in wells and equipment to irrigate the 100 acres. The sprinkler system consists of 1,000 feet of four-inch pipe, 19 spray heads and a motor to pump the water out of the open ditch leading from the wells and force it through the pipes.

Farmer Finds That It Pays Him To Raise Own Work Stock.

Raising his own work stock has proved profitable to C. C. Fudge, Izard county, Arkansas farmer. Raising colts to replenish his work stock is much more economical than purchasing grown animals, Mr. Fudge says.

He has two mule colts that were foaled in April, 1936, and these yearling colts now have a market value of $100 each. This is a good income from two mares in view of the fact that very little work time was lost, and the mares did their part of the farm work last year.

Has Found Winter Pasture Crops That Form Ideal Combination.

After trying several crops, E. F. Welner of Baxter county, Arkansas, has succeeded in growing the winter pasture and cover crop that has proved the ideal combination. Last fall Mr. Welner sowed one bushel of crimson clover and one-half bushel of rye on an acre of land. The entire cost for seed and inoculation was only $2.65.

Besides furnishing nutritious winter pasture for 150 White Leghorn hens and the family milk cow, the patch produced two tons of hay. The $1.50 received from the government soil conservation program for seedling almost paid for the seed.

So successful was Mr. Welner's trial with crimson clover and rye that each day one or more persons stopped to view the satisfactory combination. Mr. Welner is so thoroughly sold on the pasture and cover crop mixture that he will henceforth grow the crops more extensively.

at a total cost of less than $30 was the achievement of Richard P. Griffith, Monroe county, Arkansas. The hay and livestock barn was made of cypress logs, using heart cypress logs for foundations, post oak sills and rafters and home-made cypress shingles.

The grain barn was constructed in a similar manner. Pine saplings were used for rafters, and chinking was with rough oak planks milled for $4 per thousand feet.

ALONG GARDEN WALKS.

The other morning I drove through Clifton enroute to Waco and just east of the city passed a young lady driving a big tractor. Evidently she was returning from the shop enroute to her father's plantation. The little lady was about 18-years of age, dressed in a pair of blue denim overalls and a snow-white waist. She wore a sun bonnet hat and was as pretty as the cotton blossoms she worked among. In passing, I greeted her, saying: "Hello! Young Lady". She answered by raising her hand. I learned her father was a successful country gentleman and her mother a housewife. She enjoys the song of the harvest and believes civilization begins and ends with the plow. All the east to her is molten gold.

That young lady has a great understanding of the philosophy of Life. Her deportment convinced me she was cultured—the master of her own fate, the captain of her own destiny. Evidently her time is too valuable to be spent in road-side houses, gambling dens or gilded saloons. In earthen vessels she carries purple grapes. It is a great inspiration for her to look over father's broad acres of waving wheat. The cabins in the cotton and the dusky inmates appeal to admiration and create within her the desire for better things of life. She enjoys them. She is a friend to the little pigs, contented cows and the lordly turkeys. On Sunday she goes to church and hears the parson pray and preach.

That little lady believes in barns well filled with golden grain, cattle on all the hillsides and sheep grazing in the valley. According to her economics nothing is impossible. Every able-bodied man through the channels of hard work and saving can have a cottage, pent-house and dove-cote by the side of the road. All that is necessary is to pay a price. Trees loaded with yellow fruit and vines with purple grapes convince her the horn of plenty is for all. She cannot understand why the working man cannot find employment in the vineyard and around the winepress. My hat is off to that little lady for she believes in individual effort. Lucky will be the young man who leads her to the altar. Is she right in her contentions? Two thousand years ago a Roman senator in his chariot of gold drove through the country-side of his native land and tarried among the

DEVINE NEWSLETS.

From The Devine News. LARGE CROWDS ATTEND JUSTICE COURT HERE.

A large crowd of people attended Justice Court here last Monday; cars were parked, both sides the street for a whole block. Attorney H. E. Haass, G. C. Morris and Joe Briscoe were among the attendants. A large delegation from Lytle came down expecting the case filed against the boys who got into trouble in a citrus orchard up on the irrigated lands recently; but the case was continued. LA COSTE LEDGERETTES.

From The LaCoste Ledger.

On Sunday, Nov. 14th, Miss Marguerite Kauffman, a bride of the month, was honored by her attendants with a miscellaneous shower at the LaCoste High School Auditorium. After all the guests had registered in the bride's book and were seated, the bridal march by Lohengrin was played by Miss Rose Lillian Jungman, the bride was led to the stage by the intended groom. The curtain was drawn showing a harvest scene with a large golden Horn of Plenty from which flowed the many lovely and useful gifts. After being seated, the bride opened all the gifts and thanked each donor in person, inviting them one and all to see her wedding at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Nov. 23rd. The Harvest or Thanksgiving motive was also carried out in decorations with the refreshments, which consisted of sandwiches, cake and punch. About one hundred and twenty-five guests were present.

the campfire Grimstead strained to catch the last sounds of the night. Things were going very well. They always did go well, he had when directed masterfully. He threw away his cigar, and arose. First he leaned over the tent, listening to his rather stertorous breathing. He sauntered to the big redwood house base the kitchen had been. Then in a passion of mingled loyalty and anger she fell on her knees again beside the unconscious man. Rapscaillon yawned and stretched. The trouble, whatever it was, seemed to be happily over. After a moment he wandered carelessly away, as though on an aimless saunter. Once out of sight, however, he pattered rapidly into the tent, leaped upon Burton's cot and curled himself into a luxurious ball. Nothing further happened now until shortly after sunrise the next morning. Then Burton, who had fallen into an uneasy slumber after some hours of futile watching to see that dear Larry did not die of an over-dose without her knowing it, shivered and awoke. For a moment she stared about her vacantly. Then recollection too awoke, and she reached out to shake Davenport by the shoulder. The young man continued to sleep, but he half roused himself, and he turned and muttered before settling himself again. This was distinctly encourag- ing. At least the first denuding ef- fects of the morphine must have worked themselves off. Burton tried again, and yet again, until at length he opened a sleepy eye. The first ex- pression of the said eye was vacant, but when recognition entered, its own er sat up broad awake. "What is it, dear?" he cried. "What are you doing here?" "I'm all right," she assured him, "but I've something to tell you. Wake up first." He made a powerful effort for control of his faculties. "Lord, I've got a head!" he confessed. "And all on one little drink! I can't think!" He shook the said head gingerly from side to side, then took it in his hands. "I'm going now to get dressed," she told him. "You'd better go down to the creek and try cold water. Get dressed quickly. Hurry!" She disappeared into the tent whence came the sound of a light body hitting the ground, succeeded by the sight of Rapscaillon sauntering forth, trying, with only partial suc- cess, to look like a dog who had not slept in a bed. Larry drew on his clothes and stum- bled to the creek, where the cold wa- ter soon removed the last effects of the narcotic. He returned to camp to find Burton awaiting him. Her story did not take long in the telling. Davenport listened attentively. The narrative finished, he rose to his feet, fumbled in his pack, drew forth a revolver and holster, which he strapped to his belt. "What are you going to do?" she asked anxiously. "I'm going to follow the car." "You can't hope to catch it afoot!" "The chance is very slim," he ac- knowledged, "but it's the only chance, and it should be taken. Luck might play with us. The car might get stalled. Who knows? And in any case I've got to get on the wires to the lawyers right away." He was methodically bestowing small necessities in a rucksack. "Please have Simmins take care of my other things," he requested. "Good- by, dear." He opened his arms and she crept into them. They clung together for a moment. "Be careful," she begged. "You must come back to me. Don't—don't be rash, will you?" He laughed. "You mean the gun? No; I'm not going forth to slay. Dearest, we're going to lick them! I have a hunch! It just came to me with the most over- powering force. It's coming out all right!" He kissed her again and strode away. "Come back to me soon!" she called after him. "The soonest ever!" he cried back. After his departure Burton, whose education had been coming on, made herself some coffee. About two hours later Simmins appeared, very apolo- getic over his tardiness, but more as- tonished at the disappearance of per- sonnel and material. The absence of the little car Burton had expected; but she was at first puzzled to hear that the extra cooking utensils, which had been taken to the lower camp for the use of the watchers in making their breakfast, had disappeared; as also a small quantity of provisions. Then enlightenment caused her lips to curve in a slightly scornful smile. The Pirate Chief, of course! He had taken not only his blankets, but his provision. He was hiding out, and Burton had a shrewd suspicion that he would continue hiding out. Even a Pirate Chief has if not ten- der feelings, at least love of mental ease; and Burton realized that even this stern parent might be just as well satisfied if he did not have to face his child while things were too fresh in her mind! "Simmins, see if Mr. Grimstead's fishing tackle is here," she ordered. Simmins' report that the fishing tackle had been taken confirmed her opinion. "You and I will probably have to wait here some days," she interrupted Simmins' excited conjectures. "Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Davenport have gone away in the car, probably to get help or on business. Father has un- doubtedly gone for a day or two's fishing down stream; I believe he mentioned it." She spoke with elaborate appear- ance of indifference. But for once Simmins broke through of his own volition. "Oh, miss!" he implored. "Do not longer keep me in the dark. I know well that dark deeds are afoot. Can you not accept me as a faithful serv- itor of your interests and confide in me the truth?" Simmins was as well satisfied with the dictation and delivery of that speech as with anything he had ever done. The appeal was genuine and ir- resistible. While they cooked breakfast the two talked eagerly. The situation was thrilling, and they young. They thrilled, and speculated, and wondered, and worked each other up mutually to a high state of romance. (To Be Continued)

MY PRAIRIES.

Oblique patches of sunny wild flowers
Changing fire-opal aglow,
Stretching across our vast prairies,
On slopes rising gently they grow.

They spread to the boulder-strewn mountains—
Horned toads squatting at rest,
Away from all sullied pretences,
Purple thistles, a barb in their breasts.

Blue, hazy looming in distance,
High peaks with green-feathered crest,
Purple shadows lining the valleys,
My Prairies,—my Homeland—my West.

—LOIS PAGE, Altus, Oklahoma.

COUNTRY ROMANCE.

I thought you dear and wonderful,
(I didn't realize
That golden dust from hay roads
Must have gotten in my eyes.)
Now autumn leaves are drifting down
In gentle melancholy.
Though you are gone, I know I shan't
Regret sweet summer's folly!

—LORRAINE S. WHEATLEY, Commerce, Texas.

STAMBOUL.

She wears the East about her like a shawl—
A shawl of long ago tossed carelessly
Above her vivid modish dress,
She moves in tune with Time, in love
With Life, and yet the dreaming wonder in her violet eyes
Suggests the tempo of the old, old shawl.

—JOSEPHINE POWELL BEATY, Dallas, Texas.

PASTORAL.

Quiet runs the river,
Quiet lie the hills.
Golden are the treetops'
Where the last light spills.

Shepherds, standing yonder,
Lift the pasture bars.
When your flock is sheltered
Night will loose her stars.

FIRE CONTROL IN RURAL AMERICA.

On a comparative basis, fire occurs oftener in smaller communities than in larger cities. Figures compiled by the National Board of Fire Underwriters show that where 9.92 fires per 1,000 population occur annually in towns of 20,000-50,000 population, the rate drops to 8.39 in cities of the 250,000-500,000 bracket, and to 6.19 in metropolises housing 500,000 or more people.

The per capita fire loss in the 20,000-50,000 classification is $1.49, as against $1.36 in over-500,000 group. While statistics are not available for communities of less than 20,000 population, it is a logical supposition that both the number of fires per 1,000 people and the per capita loss are materially higher.

Fire waste is a grave problem to all the country—and it is more than ordinarily grave in our smaller cities, towns and villages. And on farms, where efficient fire-fighting equipment is often unobtainable, a fire that would be of small consequence in a well protected city may turn out to be a disaster. Loss of human and animal life through fire is likewise tragically high in our rural areas.

Any community or district, no matter how small in population, can quickly and simply reduce its fire loss. Fire marshals can instruct citizens in the proper technique of eliminating hazards, and literature is available on the subject. "Spruce up" campaigns to tear down useless buildings, keep vacant lots clear, etc., are a great help in ridding the community of some of the gravest dangers. And in the matter of fire protection, many small towns and farming communities have proven it practical to finance district fire-fighting organizations which are strategically located where they may serve a wide surrounding territory swiftly and efficiently when fire breaks out. The cost of this, in the light of service rendered, is insignificant.

One of the greatest tragedies of fire is that almost all fires are preventable.—Industrial News Review.

COMPETING WITH CHEOPS.

Fort Peck dam on the Missouri river in Montana, is generally conceded to be the largest construction project ever undertaken by man—larger even than the great pyramid of the Egyptian pharaoh, Cheops. The $260,000,000 of public funds to lement was a Castroville visitor Tuesday.

Mrs. B. F. FitzSimon, Mrs. Florence McSwain, and Mrs. H. A. Tondre were San Antonio visitors Thursday.

Mrs. A. F. Rihn and Mrs. Ellis Wurzbach and baby son, Frederick Rihn and little Rodney Kempf and Mrs. Louise Rihn and daughter, Emma, were visiting with Mrs. C. J. Rihn and family Tuesday.

Clyde Bader was a San Antonio visitor Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Volckmann and son, Oak, arrived from Garden Plain, Kansas. They reported that they drove through snow several hundred miles. Mr. and Mrs. Volckmann will spend the winter in the Three Point Tourist Camp.

Vivian Rihn was a San Antonio visitor Tuesday.

Messrs. Ed. Tschirhart, C. J. Ahr, Otto Huegele, and A. F. Rihn, school trustees, made a business trip to Hondo Friday.

Misses Clarissa Zinsmeyer, Doris Mechler, Annie Keller, and Messrs. Ervin Biediger, Lloyd Schuchart and Claud Boehme were San Antonio visitors Sunday.

Miss Julie Terrell, Mrs. Vera Craig and daughter, Connie Ray, of San Antonio visited Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Haby and daughters Sunday.

Mr. Joe A. Bader took a trip to Dallas last week. While he was up there he attended the Servel Electroflux Convention and banquet at the Baker Hotel.

ZION'S LUTHERAN CHURCH OF CASTROVILLE.

Sunday, Nov. 28, 1937.

9:30 A. M. Sunday School and Bible class. Rev. M. A. Falkenberg of San Antonio will address the Sunday School. Come out to hear this splendid young pastor.

10:30 A. M. Installation service in the German language. Rev. M. A. Falkenberg will preach a very impressive installation sermon. Don't fail to hear him, please. He has a special message for us. After the sermon Rev. Falkenberg will install his brother, the Rev. A. H. Falkenberg, as pastor of the Zion's Lutheran Church of Castroville.

We are hereby renewing our invitation to all who need and desire a place of worship to be in any or all of the services of our church. You and your friends need the fellowship and inspiration of fellow-worshippers.

Come to see us; we shall do our best to help you.

"Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." A cordial invitation is extended the public to worship here.

The Church with a welcome, A. H. FALKENBERG, Pastor.

be spent on it will ultimately result in a vast pile of dirt, ranging as high as 242 feet over the river bed and extending across several miles of Montana prairie land. Behind this monumental upheaval will be created the "largest duck pond in the world".

Laboring taxpayers are told by "liberal" politicians that Fort Peck dam is justified in the name of humanity. They paint a glowing picture, but here is what the United States army engineer corps has to say of Fort Peck:

In regard to electric power, Major General Markham, chief of the engineers, recommended that the power plants be not installed for the practical reason that there is no market for the power. Fort Peck dam is located in a sparsely settled region, having an average population of only 7 persons per square mile. Stock raising and dry farming are the principal occupations. The report likewise pointed out that the dam will be of no material benefit as far as flood control is concerned. And, finally, regard to improved navigation: The Missouri river never can and ever will be a great originator of affluence. There are no mines, no factories, no other great sources of originating traffic on the river. . . many cars, perhaps decades, must elapse before any considerable traffic will develop, if it ever does."

Stripped of verbal persiflage, Fort Peck dam becomes nothing but a monument to political vanity, a monument that will make the taxpayers weat, and whose chief claim to fame is that it is bigger than Cheops' pyramid.—Industrial News Review.

THE PUBLIC FORGOT.

For business men who appear to think the public does not need to be constantly reminded of who they are, where they are, and what they have to sell, the well-known story of what happened to a product called Pyle's Pearlina will bear repeating.

In the early years of this century, Pearlina, a cleaning material, was used by most of the housewives of the country. In 1904 the company spent $500,000 in advertising. Then the advertising was greatly curtailed, and about 1907 it was discontinued altogether, as the company thought the product was so well known that no further advertising was necessary.

Sales fell off rapidly, but the company's owners persisted in their non-advertising policy until 1915 when the whole concern was sold for $12,000. Pearlina was dead.

Many other products whose names were household words a few years ago are no longer sold, because the manufacturers failed to keep up their advertising, and consequently the public forgot them.

TOUCH-DOWN TACTICS

YALE . . .

by

Raymond W. Pond
Head Football Coach

This is the sixth in a series of nine outstanding diagram plays by nine leading college coaches from Grantland Rice's Cities Service Football Guide.

THIS play resulted in the only score of the Yale-Princeton game in 1934. It is better when used on the 2nd or 3rd down in a team's own territory with large yardage to make. The pass is thrown from punt formation, and this is the way it worked.

Morton, No. 1, as a decoy, pulled the defensive left halfback toward the side line. Train, L. E., also as a decoy, pulled the defensive right halfback toward the side line.

Business men should remember that new generations of potential customers are coming along all the time, and that these new buyers must be sold on a product or a store as their fathers and mothers were before them.

The only time it is safe to stop advertising is when one is ready to go out of business.—Selected.

EXCESSIVE TAXATION UNDEMOCRATIC.

"Excessive taxation of motorists, most of whom have small or modest incomes, runs counter to the principles of true democracy. Our government should aim to bring, through its taxation policies, the greatest good to the greatest number. It should strive to foster the distribution of the fruits of American inventiveness and model business organization to that strata of our population with low incomes. But excessive taxation curbs the distribution of wealth and the advantages of modern life, not among the rich, but among the poor. Thus, when the annual gasoline tax burden on the average motorist in the United States rose from $5 to more than $20, its practical effect was to penalize those motorists—the 'typical motorists'—whose income is confined to narrow limits. The rich, who constitute only a small part of the nation's motorists, have the ability to pay, but those with modest incomes have no such ability.

"Excessively high automotive taxes, such as prevail generally throughout the United States, pervert the principles of democratic government, and by curbing the full enjoyment of motor transportation among those with low or moderate incomes, they make a farce of governmental activities allegedly aiming to better the lot of those families in the lower income groups. THE GREATEST SERVICE THAT THE FEDERAL AND STATE GOVERNMENTS CAN RENDER TO THEIR CITIZENRY IS TO STEM THE RISING TIDE OF TAXATION, especially automotive taxation.

"The 'typical motorist' in the United States rides an average of 40 eight-hour days a year. He must work from one to two weeks to pay the taxes on that travel. Relief from excessive taxation would have the practical effect of reducing the amount of time that he must labor to pay for the enjoyment of his automobile and would leave him more money for other things in life. That is a sound and reasonable objective for a democratic government."

"WORTH THINKING ABOUT."

In a recent Saturday Evening Post, John Fort writes, "I Work For A Power Company".

He describes himself as a typical white-collar worker approaching middle age. His salary is less than $200 and more than $100 a month. He has a wife, three children and "a small house on which there is a mortgage". The power company is in the Southeast. The Tennessee Valley Authority, paid for and subsidized with government money—taken from all taxpayers—is paralleling his company's lines and preparing to take away a substantial part of its business.

John Fort is wondering what is going to become of him and his job—the job that stands between his family and the man who owns the mortgage on his house, the doctor, the grocer and everyone with whom he does business. "So far as I am concerned," says John Fort, "my government is taking sides with the crowd which tries to gobble up my pay check, so right at this point I stand up and ask why. I ask why because I'm one of the class of citizens for whose benefit it is said that all this whooping and hollering about uplift has been going on. . . Frankly speaking, I am about to lose my patriotism, such as it is."

The jobs of many John Forts are imperiled by the government's policy of competing, on a tax-free, subsidized basis, with private business which is heavily taxed and stringently regulated and has long served the public efficiently and economically. There is no reason for believing that government, unless it is checked, will be satisfied with gobbling up the power business. Already the politicians are looking toward the railroads. Why not insurance, groceries, banking, printing and publishing? If government is justified in producing and selling electric power, why not other things? And then millions of John Forts will see their jobs destroyed and given to political appointees.

Kelley, No. 6, went straight toward the defensive left halfback and then angled into the middle zone and caught the pass, after which he carried it 43 yards for a touchdown. The safety back, expecting a punt, could not come up fast enough to break it up.

The offensive right guard blocked the defensive left tackle, and the rest of the blocking is quite obvious from the diagram.

John Fort concludes his Saturday Evening Post article with, "I'm supposed to be steady in a pinch. It's going to be the hell of a note when these youngsters and the jobless and dissatisfied come back from their experimenting and look for the heavy-shouldered family men to withstand the attack which they provoked—and find that we're gone."

"That eventuality is worth thinking about—even worth the politicians' thinking about."—Industrial News Review.

TODAY'S TAXOGRAMS.

By Ellis Parker Butler
(reprinted from the New Mexico Tax Bulletin)

Said Statesman A to Statesman Z:

"What can we tax that is not paying?
We're taxing every blessed thing—
Here's what our people are de-traying:

"Tariff tax, income tax,
Tax on retail sales,
Club tax, school tax,
Tax on beers and ales.

"City tax, county tax,
Tax on obligations,
War tax, wine tax,
Tax on corporations.

"Brewer tax, sewer tax,
Tax on motor cars,
Bond tax, stock tax,
Tax on liquor bars.

"Bridge tax, check tax,
Tax on drugs and pills,
Gas tax, ticket tax,
Tax on gifts in wills.

"Poll tax, dog tax,
Tax on money loaned,
State tax, road tax,
Tax on all things owned.

"Stamp tax, land tax,
Tax on wedding rings,
High tax, low tax,
Tax on everything."

Said Statesman A to Statesman Z:

"That is the list, a pretty bevy;
No thing or act that is untaxed:
There's nothing more on which to levy."

Said Statesman Z to Statesman A:

"The deficit each moment waxes;
This is no time for us to fail—
We will decree a tax on taxes."

I LOVE YOU.

Oh, all the day long
I sing a glad song;
Three magical words so complete;
That the lift of a bird,
Is heard in each word,
I love you, I love you,
My sweet.

The winds tell me too
They're sighing for you,
And hasten along down the street;
In sunshine or rain
I repeat this refrain,
I love you, I love you,
My sweet.

The blue of your eyes
Is like sapphire skies,
Their glance makes my heart skip a beat;
Your absence gives pain,
I repeat it again;
I love you, I love you,
My sweet.

Soon now we shall wed
Love's pathway we'll tread,
Together we'll know no defeat;
You're the light of my soul,
Love's story is told;
I love you, I love you,
My sweet.

MRS. HUEGELE RECOVERS STOLEN TURKEYS.

Mrs. Frank Huegele of this place was fortunate enough last Saturday to recover some of the turkeys stolen from her the night of November 2. She was able to identify the fowls because she had daubed green paint on their white feathers. We quote the following from the San Antonio Express:

Being fattened for the Thanksgiving Day market, the turkeys had been given these specks of green for identification purposes and Saturday Mrs. Huegele used them to identify 31 turkeys discovered on a farm near Converse, apparently abandoned by thieves who had taken them the night of Nov. 2.

Shortly after her loss, Mrs. Huegele had telephoned the sheriff's office, describing the birds, reporting their loss. The report was turned over to Deputies Alvin Friesehnahn, Herman Winkelman, Vernon C. Schmeder and Elto R. Cude for investigation. Saturday, the Converse farmer, thinking the birds were strays, notified the deputies of his discovery of 31 white turkeys on his farm. Called by the deputies, Mrs. Huegele repeated her description of the green specks was given the birds. Three other turkeys in the same brood were found to have been run over by motor cars.
